Micropolitan America

Micropolitan statistical areas—"micros"—are core based statistical areas (CBSAs) that include a core in a small town and its surroundings. Over the 2013–2017 period, micros had a higher share of workers employed in the agriculture, forestry, fishing and hunting, and natural resources industries, as well as in the mining industry. Looking at occupations, the country overall had higher shares of workers in production occupations. Over the 2013–2017 period, micros had a higher share of workers employed in the agriculture, forestry, fishing and hunting, and natural resources industries, as well as in the mining industry. Looking at occupations, the country overall had higher shares of workers in production occupations.