between 2021 and 2022, while the increase in the number of their female counterparts was approximately 1.8 million (Figure 5 and Table A-6). In 2022, the share of men working full-time, year-round increased to 75.9 percent from 74.6 percent in 2021 (1.7 percent increase). The share of women working full-time, year-round increased to 65.6 percent in 2022 from 64.5 percent in 2021 (1.7 percent increase). Since 2019, the share of women working full-time, year-round increased 1.8 percent, while the change in the share of men working full-time, year-round was not significant. The 2022 share of women working full-time, year-round is the largest share ever recorded in this report.